

C.J. Food, Inc named on the list of fastest growing companies in America

C.J. Foods, Inc. announced that they have been named to the 2013 Inc. 5000 list of the fastest growing companies in America in the September 2013 issue “INC Magazine”. C.J. Foods achieved the designation of being listed 2,653rd of the 5,000 fastest growing companies in America from January 2010 through December 2012. During that 3 year period C.J. Foods ranked in the top 100 fastest growing manufacturing companies nationally and top 20 fastest growing of all companies in Kansas and in the top 10 fastest growing companies in Nebraska.

C.J. Foods has manufacturing locations in Bern Kansas and Pawnee City Nebraska where they employ more than 300 people manufacturing and packaging dry super premium pet foods and treats.

C.J. Foods has a long history in the area beginning in Pawnee City in 1985 as a supplier of custom manufacturing services to marketers of human food products. By the early 90’s the company had made a full transition from manufacturing human foods and snacks to producing only Super Premium Pet Foods. In 1995, and with fewer than 20 employees’ total, C.J. Foods broke ground on a new factory and by March of 1996 was producing its first products from the new factory. This was the first of what have been many investments in the growth of the company.

After several more significant plant expansion investments in Pawnee City NE and Bern KS, C.J. Foods has become known as premier contract manufacturer of some of the highest quality pet food brands in the world.

The employees in all facilities continually prove themselves to be skilled professionals with extensive experience and knowledge in the development and manufacturing of extruded pet food products.

C.J. Foods currently employees over 300 people and with their current size and growth strategies are always seeking talented individuals to join the team. The company has grown from a small fledgling business to one that commands the respect of an entire industry while offering a wide variety of career path opportunities.

Tod Morgan is currently the President and CEO of C.J. Foods and has served in many roles since joining the company in 1995. Morgan said that he is incredibly proud of how C.J. Foods has brought more than 300 new jobs to our communities in the past 18 years. Morgan says the company has aggressive growth plans for the future as they continue to serve the ever growing pet food market in the United States and around the world. Morgan continued by saying that “the heart and soul of our business and its success is the result of having such great people on our team”.
